Los Alamos Farmers' Market Rules & Regulations

Reselling will not be tolerated at the LAFM. There will be no exceptions. Any infractions will be viewed as a violation and will result in permanent exclusion from the LAFM. (Please consult the market manager if there are any questions and you need clarification.)

Produce will only be allowed to sell produce grown & harvested by them within the borders of New Mexico. Preference will be given to farmers closest to the Los Alamos area. Any farmer or product outside this area must be approved on a case-by-case basis.

Only items listed on your crop plan may be sold at market.

Farmers must notify the market manager of changes in their crop plan in writing before bringing any new crop to market. Management may ask a vendor to remove any item that is not listed on their crop plan. Farmers entering the market for the first time during the season may be required to withhold product if it is determined that there is too much of that product at the market on that day.

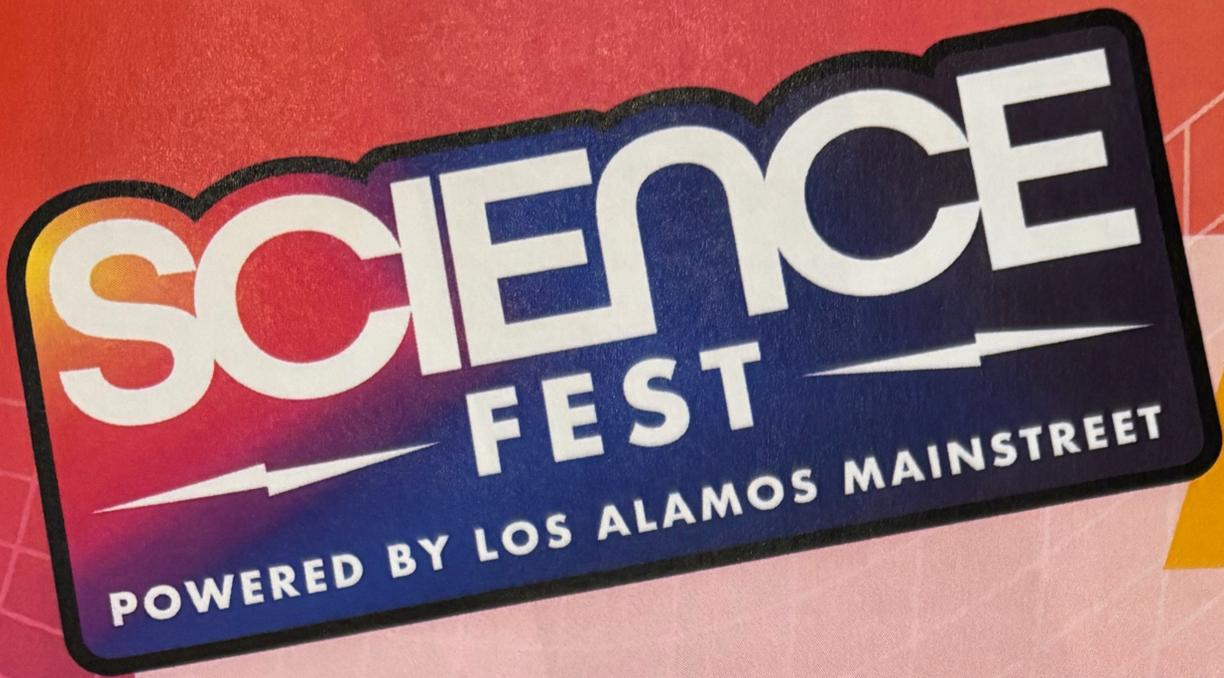

ALL VENDORS must agree to assist in the inspection of their farm or gardens. Failure to do so can result in suspension. Everyone will be inspected once every three years, or more often if warranted.

Produce offered at the market must be grown, cared for, and harvested by the local farmer. To assure our customers that they receive the highest quality fruits & vegetables, any overripe fruits or produce must be clearly marked and priced as such.

Juices can be sold by the producers of those fruits. Processors must use new containers. A copy of your processor's permit, liability insurance, and label must be submitted with your application.

Dried Fruits & Vegetables can only be sold from the produce you have grown & harvested. A copy of your processor permit, liability insurance, and label must be submitted with your application.

Eggs must be from your own fowl. Eggs must be washed, and containers must be clean or new. Eggs must be kept cool and marked if not labeled "Ungraded". Also, egg cartons must have your farm information label attached.
